

Looking at Grasses 24th June 2009

11 people accompanied Angus Idle on a walk on Naphill Common looking for and identifying grasses. We left Naphill Village Hall at 7pm returning just after 8pm having walked via Downley Road to Daisy Pond and back.

Angus had his eye in as we walked quite quickly and he would spot yet another different type of grass. At each stop Angus described what we were looking at, giving its common name and why it had its latin name. He was very enthusiastic and an expert in this field so it made a very interesting and informative evening.

Getting down to business (Photo by Peter Davis)

Going where no man has gone before - in Daisy Pond
(Photo by Peter Davis)

(Photo by Steve Rodrick)

(Photo by Kevin Bennett)

(Photo by Kevin Bennett)

(Photo by Kevin Bennett)

(Photo by Steve Rodrick)